

Saturday and Sunday, April 4th and 5th, 2009

Samantha Fairuz and Denise present
Workshops and Performance with
Faten Salama

Faten began dancing at 11 years of age when she was selected to attend the first-ever national folk troupe of Egypt dance school for children. The training conducted with the assistance of Russian teachers included classical ballet, orientale, and character dance (Russian style of dance). After graduation she was selected to perform with the Egyptian National Folk Troupe and performed for audiences of over 5,000. She traveled with the troupe, entertaining heads of state, ambassadors, and royalty across the globe. At 22 Faten married Shawki Naim, the top soloist in Egypt and the National Troupe choreographer. Their marriage was one of talents, and they combined them to form their own troupe, which received an invitation from the Egyptian Embassy in Washington, DC. The trip ultimately turned into a tour that included stops in Pennsylvania, Texas, Nevada, and California.

Faten has relocated and is now living in northern Virginia, and holds weekly classes and workshops in Manassas and Washington, D.C. Faten says, "Our Egyptian folklore is full of dances and Inshallah, as we say in Egypt. I will have the opportunity to travel all over the U.S. teaching our Egyptian folklore and oriental style of dance."

Faten's classical Egyptian style captures the essence of all we admire in the Egyptian Danse Orientale. In the tradition of our own grandparents and ancestors, she captures the rich treasures of the old world to enrich the culture of her new American home. Her dance is vibrant with deep, soulful emotion and the precision rhythm that are at the heart of this art form. Faten adds to this her very own quintessential feminine grace and passionate love and joy of the dance, making her performances and teachings a very special experience you won't want to miss.
